Church History

Hungarian workers from the Cambria Iron Company who lived in Cambria City formed a congregation in 1896 and initially worshipped at St. John's United Church of Christ in Johnstown until they built their own church in Cambria City in 1901, dedicated the next year. The church is a simple brick structure over a stone basement with a central tower and belfry. The building immediately behind the church at 321 9th Avenue originally housed the Board of Home Missions of the Reformed Church, and may have served as a parsonage. In 1980, the congregation merged with the Windber Hungarian Reformed Church (which had been destroyed by fire), and the bells from the Windber Church, as well as its 1905 cornerstone, are displayed behind the church in Cambria City. The church has been only partially active since 1995, and its archives – all in the Hungarian language - are located at the Bethlen Home in Ligonier PA.
